MEDICAL-SOCIAL SERVICE: A PROFESSION THAT CALLS

Dr. Maclure, about whom Ian MacLaren tells so charmingly, knew the people of his Highland village as well as their diseases. The medicine and advice which he dispensed had the flavor of canny wisdom, because issued from a knowledge of his patients' constitutions, circumstances, habits and prejudices, as well as from a diagnosis of their immediate ailments. Such a "doctor of the old school" was a guide, philosopher and friend as well as a physician.

But medicine nowadays, particularly in the large cities, has become almost as much specialized as the manufacture of automobiles or shoes. One physician treats eyes and nothing else, another throats and ears, a third stomachs and a fourth does surgery only. There are perhaps not fifty-seven varieties of specialists, but there are enough kinds to be bewildering. The patient is seen from the angle of a disease rather than as a personality. This is true particularly in the hospitals and the dispensaries, where patients come in numbers to see doctors who have never known them in their homes, who see them momentarily and cannot always pass judgment on matters that vitally affect the lives of these sick men and women.

Medical-Social Service came into being to remedy the deficiency created by medical specialization, which threatened to leave out of account the element of personality and to render it difficult for the doctor to adapt his prescriptions and his hygienic advice to the individuality and the circumstances of the patient as well as to his immediately pressing illness. The increased emphasis on preventive rather than on merely curative work increases the need for a trained health teacher, which the medical-social worker largely is. In the practice of a great hospital and dispensary thousands of human and medical problems are faced in the course of a year.

"A woman needs an operation, but at home are four young children and the father earns but $12 a week. The mother can neither leave her little ones nor afford a servant. The doctor may make his diagnosis and advise the operation, but unless the social worker finds out the woman's home situation and secures a friend or relative to act as caretaker, or a charitable agency which will hire one if necessary, the woman will not go to the hospital for what she needs. A man comes with syphilis. His wife and children ought to be examined, and perhaps when they meet the doctor the family situation which faces the physician and the social worker will require the wisdom of Solomon to solve. A mother brings a sick baby wrapped in many clothes and fed on condensed milk. Ignorance and not lack of income must be patiently wrestled with."

Beginning in 1906 at the Massachusetts General Hospital, under the inspiring leadership of Dr. Richard C. Cabot, Medical-Social Service has spread among the hospitals and dispensaries of the country, until now more than two hundred of the leading institutions of the United States have organized social service departments. The number is growing; there is an active demand for it.

The war has stimulated this demand. The experiences of the war have driven home to thousands a realization of the significance of health, not merely as a matter of personal comfort, but as a national and community asset. The wonderful achievements of the Medical Corps in keeping our army well have dramatized the possibilities of modern medicine. The general public is more ready than ever to support any well-founded movement that contributes to health. Hence the hospitals today all over the country are demanding trained social workers, equipped to enter this new field in which a combination of personality, knowledge of the general nature of the more common diseases and training in educational, hygienic and social problems are demanded of the workers. Medical-Social service in hospitals and dispensaries does not necessarily require a nurses' training, for there are many successful workers that do not possess this. The schools that are now training students for Medical-Social Service cannot meet the demands of the hospitals and dispensaries and call for more fresh blood. Medical-Social Service finds its usual place in a charitable institution, which the hospital and dispensary normally is. But it is a form of work broader than charity in the old sense. It is not relief; it is human reconstruction, the readjustment of personality to environment when illness combined with some personal, financial or industrial problem has made it difficult for a personality without help to carry on a normal or successful life. Stimulating contact with the physicians on the one side and with the organized health and charitable resources of the community on the other make the position of a medical-social worker one of peculiar interest. The field calls for workers who will give themselves to it, and it will return to them the double reward of service and of self-development.

AMERICANIZATION WORK AS A FIELD FOR COLLEGE WOMEN

Franklin K. Lane, the Secretary of the Interior, says of the question of Americanization: "We are trying a great experiment in the United States. Can we gather together people of different races, creeds, conditions and aspiration who can be merged into one? If we cannot do this we will fail indeed; we will have already failed. If we do this we will produce the greatest of all nations, a new race that will long hold a compelling place in the world." In the working out of this "great experiment" of Americanization the whole-hearted active support of every intelligent member of each community is required.

To make the Americanization movement a success, first of all it is necessary to have intelligent leadership and then a sufficient number of disinterested persons capable of intelligent team work. Both qualities of leadership and ability to do team work are distinct qualifications of the college-bred woman of today.

The great need in the work with the foreign-born is the mobilization of persons capable of understanding and imparting to others what America means in terms of democracy, and at the same time competent to appreciate what worth-while contributions come to us from the newcomers of the varied racial groups which form a component part of American life. It is particularly in college or in the years of preparation for a life work that a knowledge of such historic background can be attained. For an appreciation of the immigrant races it is not enough to know the ancient history of Greece and Rome, the medieval history of Europe, but upon the essential framework of such a historical study should come a knowledge of both the history and geography of Europe of the last few centuries. For any one desiring to work directly with the foreign-born the knowledge of the modern language is an additional and splendid asset, but a knowledge or at least an attempt at an understanding of the different psychology of the varied races is an essential.

If our work with the foreign-born is to be of value to them as well as to us, we must not be content merely to appreciate what of interest, of color, of culture the Old World brings us, but we should have at hand in a form simple and attractive enough for a primitive type of mind to assimilate it, whatever essential things there are of American life or history which the stranger should know. Wherever one is in America one is practically sure to find an immigrant problem in more or less acute stages. Roughly, the matter resolves itself into two phases—the protection of these well-meaning newcomers from the exploitation and abuse ignorance of the language subjects them to, and the stimulation of their assimilation into American life by education and by participation of its civic life. The first phase, that of protection, is best handled by trained workers under governmental employ. In the working out of the second phase any number of workers can be utilized under proper supervision.

As to the practical tying up of the college girl with the agencies interested in Americanization work, that perhaps resolves itself into a question of a particular locality. Two Federal agencies at least, the Department of the Interior, which maintains an Americanization division under the Bureau of Education, and the Department of Labor through its Immigration Service, have definite interests in the work. Three states, California, Massachusetts and New York, have organized departments for immigration work. College settlements, social agencies, public schools—the organizations are legion which are interested in the work. All Federal or State Bureaus or any accredited private agencies will gladly give definite information of whatever opportunities lie within their scope. All work should be done in connection with some responsible organization.

The immigrant does not necessarily create new problems in the civic life of America for the solution of which a new type of trained worker is required. The immigrant complicates, if you will, the world-old problems of poverty, of disease, of unemployment, of labor, of misery by adding to the existing difficulty the added handicap of ignorance of a medium of communication. Shut off from his American neighbors by his ignorance of their language, he is often preyed upon by unscrupulous ones of his own race or of other races who know his language, and, embittered by the cruel experiences of his early years in the country, he fancies that he finds in his own failure the failure of American democracy. Thus disillusioned and disappointed, he sometimes become a menace, not because he is incapable of assimilation into useful citizenship, but rather because our neglect to protect him has made him an easy victim of false leaders. To prevent not only this waste of good material for citizenship, but also to gain for America the sum total of the homely virtues which the humblest of immigrants bring is the privilege of those interested in Americanization.

ALICE W. O'CONNOR,

Executive Secretary, Massachusetts Bureau of Immigration.

OPPORTUNITIES AND NECESSARY QUALIFICATIONS FOR WORK WITH AND FOR THE BLIND

Trained and understanding workers with and for the blind are in demand all over the country. It is now understood that work of this sort is a very distinct social problem with its own psychological and unique viewpoint. The worker must have the gift of imagination, patience and tact to an unusual degree. The blind person is like any other man or woman, with the exception of this lack of sight; but this very lack opens another world of nervous tension, shut-in-ness and industrial disability. The trained worker must learn to walk in this world and understand the conditions which come with blindness. The training must needs take time, and should include a knowledge of the everyday needs of the blind man, of the industrial possibilities, both in shops created especially for the sightless and work of office and factory in competition with the seeing; and of special appliances in work and play. For those who desire to take up the work among blind children there should be a long period of observation and if possible residence in a school for the blind. This is a great help for all workers. The need of a certain knowledge of eye structure and diseases and of the methods of approach of eye clinics is essential for thorough understanding and helpfulness.

We have found that our volunteer workers have often made the best helpers, coming with an intelligent, open-minded viewpoint. They have proved themselves ready to perform the most stupid task or one requiring true tact. Those who have worked with the Massachusetts Commission for the Blind for a period of six months or a year and at the end of that time have wished positions have been placed almost without exception.

The worker for the blind must realize that she is entering a small field, one of the individual, and it is only to a person caring for the personal equation that such work would appeal for any length of time.

There is a growing need all over the United States for workers who understand the placement in industry, conservation of eyesight, and prevention of blindness, for field workers for schools for the blind and general field workers. The appeal of the blinded soldier has awakened the country to an interest in these problems from which the civilian blind will gain much benefit.

FLORENCE W. BIRCHARD,

UNDERGRADUATE CHAPTERS

PUBLIC HEALTH PROGRAM FOR UNDERGRADUATES

The I. C. S. A. has arranged a program of practical experience and observation of public health work for undergraduates for the spring vacation. This will consist of a six-day visit in Boston, with special work at the Psychopathic, City, Children's and Massachusetts General Hospitals. Although arranged primarily for seniors, this opportunity is open to others. Application for this visit must be made before March 1, through the undergraduate Elector, to Miss Tuttle. The details of the program and visit are being planned by Miss Helen Myrick, of the Psychopathic Hospital, and further notice will be given through the college bulletins.

MEMBERSHIP

Miss Tuttle reports a most encouraging increase in membership in many of the undergraduate chapters.

JACKSON (a new chapter)—172—100 per cent of the college, meaning every girl in college.

SARGENT (a new chapter)—262.

WELLESLEY, 1917-18, 170; 1918-19, 464.

WHEATON, 1917-18, 47; 1918-19, 153.

WELLS, 1917-18, 186; 1918-19, 190. This represents nearly 100 per cent, as only 19 girls in the college have not joined.

ELMIRA, 1917-18, 70; 1918-19, 60 previous to the visit of the Organizing Secretary, when every girl arose in Chapel and pledged 100 per cent membership, meaning about 350.

CORNELL has pledged 100 per cent membership, about 700. At the time of going to press the editor had not gotten the results of the membership drive.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY, 60.

SOCIAL SERVICE TRIPS

Unusual interest has been shown this year in this feature of I. C. S. A. work. A regular list of trips is being planned, offering a different excursion every month to each college. The December trip was to the Psychopathic Hospital in Boston, and was arranged as follows: Sargent and Wellesley on November 25th, Radcliffe and Boston University on December 2d, Wheaton and Jackson on December 6th. Sargent displayed such interest that three trips on December 4th, 9th and 13th had to be arranged to accommodate all those who wished to visit the hospital.

WHAT THE INDIVIDUAL CHAPTERS ARE DOING

Wellesley

Speakers: November 3d, Miss Tuttle held I. C. S. A. vespers at Chapel.

November 22d, Miss O'Connor spoke on "Americanization." immigrants at the village of Wellesley; the faculty as well as the students are interested.—Org. Sec.)

Several small meetings for those anticipating volunteer work addressed by workers from Denison and Hale House.

Finances—$443 sent to the treasurer.

Volunteer work—We sent 75 girls a week to Denison House, Hale House and Parker Memorial. We have had several trips to the Psychopathic Hospital and a trip and meeting in the Boston State House, addressed by Governor McCall.

MARION GASTON, Elector.

Sargent's Membership Contest

The first year of the Intercollegiate Community Service Association in Sargent School of Physical Education has been overwhelming in its enthusiasm.

The first chapter meeting was an open one in Assembly on October 9th, when the meaning of the I. C. S. A. was explained to the Freshmen. The second chapter meeting on October 14th was called for the election of the new elector.

The Cabinet met on October 21st and planned a one-day drive for members. A committee of three from each class was appointed to carry out a class competition which began in Assembly with a stirring and enthusiastic address by Miss Florence Tuttle on October 31st. The girls had class colored seals, which marked each I. C. S. A. member who paid her dues. Miss Tuttle met the girls in small groups through the remaining hours of the day. We are now looking forward to another day with Miss Tuttle, that those who were crowded out before may have an opportunity of talking over their work.

The Junior Class won the competition with the most members with their dues paid by the end of the day. The total membership was 240, which we considered a good percentage of our school.

On Friday, November 1st, the volunteer work applications were distributed. The demand exceeded the supply, but finally we had 175 girls signed for volunteer work.

Owing to the influenza we were not allowed to have the tea for all our committees and the Thanksgiving party we had planned, but Miss Dickey, of the Girls' City Club, gave us a most interesting talk in assembly on November 21st.

The Sargent Chapter extends a vote of thanks to Miss Jarrett, of the Psychopathic Hospital, for four most interesting and instructive trips to the hospital during November and early December.

Miss Huntington met a group of girls interested in Children's Aid and Home Libraries on December 13th. The girls were delighted with the opportunity, but due to the increase of influenza the school was again quarantined.

Temporarily all volunteer work has had to be discontinued, but with the coming of cold, clear weather we hope that conditions will so improve that the 50 girls who were already at work in various places in Boston may resume their work, and those who are still unplaced may assume the duties awaiting them.

An Alumnae Chapter is in the process of organization. Twenty-five letters were sent to members of the class of 1918. The response was immediate and still others are replying from day to day. We know that our Alumnae will soon have a strong chapter to aid the undergraduate chapter in every way.

LOIS E. BAYLEY, Elector, 1918-19.

Smith Chapter Activities

The first thing planned for this fall was the big rally, or I. C. S. A. conference of the New England colleges, to be held at Smith October 19th and 20th but given up because of the influenza epidemic. This, however, is now scheduled for spring, May 3d and 4th. Our canvass for membership came in November, and we suffered in numbers, due to a new "budget" system of canvassing, having at present 360 fully paid members and some gifts. However, we are going to have a private I. C. S. A. canvass after midyears.

In November and December the I. C. S. A. furnished speakers at two of the Tuesday evening Christian Association meetings. At the first Margaret McLeod, Smith, 1919, talked on Social Service as she had known it in connection with her work at the Boston Psychopathic Hospital during the past summer. Then on December 3d Mr. Karl de Schweinitz spoke to us.

One of the best things in the line of social service work here at Smith this year has been started from the idea of two members of the I. C. S. A. cabinet. Plans for club work with children under a real "settlement" organization are now being carried out at the People's Institute here. So far, the quarantine has hindered, but clubs of all kinds, kindergarten and festival work are among the branches of work to be done down there. Miss Mary Gove Smith came to a meeting of the prospective teachers and was favorably impressed with the plan.

We have as usual sent magazines to the Boston Library for distribution, and sent 3 boxes of old clothes to the College Settlements. As special Christmas work we sent 200 prettily dressed dolls to Denison House and sold $79 worth of their Syrian handiwork at our Christmas sale. Then, also, we arranged for four girls to go to settlement houses in New York for a week and three to the Boston Psychopathic Hospital for a week during vacation.

JOSEPHINE ALLEN, Elector.

Great Enthusiasm at Jackson

We began our active membership campaign late in October after we had covered the college with posters, and directly after Miss Tuttle's talk to us in Chapel.

Within two weeks we had a 100 per cent membership—all paid, and red I. C. S. A. tags blossomed all over "the hill."

Our first meeting came soon after and we had quite a large gathering. Miss Remele, one of our own graduates for a long time engaged in settlement work, talked to us and answered a volley of questions.

At this meeting we made plans for Thanksgiving and six needy families in the city were supplied with Thanksgiving dinners. The names were secured through the associated charities but the girls took personal charge, planning, buying and delivering.

Our other work in November included an entertainment provided at the settlement house in Somerville, in which we are actively interested, and also assisting in community sings led by a member of our faculty in the evening school centers of the city.

The short college month of December gave us hardly any opportunity except at Christmas when we had a party in the "gym" for about two dozen little Italian children from the Mission. We had a general play hour and then a Christmas tree with toys, candy and ice cream cones and Santa Claus present in a particularly jovial mood.

Our plans for Christmas carolling had to be given up but we did visit the various faculty houses the last night before Christmas and sang with the girls' glee club. Another suggestion from the I. C. S. A. cabinet was acted upon by the girls' glee club, the singing of Christmas hymns from the balcony in Chapel. This, we hope, was the inauguration of a new custom.

In such ways we have tried to promote interest in college activities.

In outside work at the various settlements in Boston and Somerville we have about twenty-five girls, the majority of whom were placed at least indirectly through the I. C. S. A.

Miss Tuttle arranged an interesting trip to the Psychopathic Hospital the first of the month, and keeps us always well informed of important meetings and lectures around Boston.

We are so new and as yet have executed so few of our cherished plans that there seems little noteworthy to report, but here's to 1919!

DOROTHY M. MCCOY, Elector.

Splendid Volunteer Work at Radcliffe

Our work this year has necessarily been hampered by the epidemic and the consequent closing of college and illness of our workers. Furthermore, we have been obliged to reduce the number of our meetings, in accordance with the simplified program which has been adopted by the college, to meet the demands of war work. The number of our speakers has, therefore, been less than usual, but we had as a speaker, on November 10, Judge Cabot, of the Boston Juvenile Court. Our one trip so far, which was attended by six girls, was to the Massachusetts Psychopathic Hospital on November 9.

As for our social work itself, we have seventeen field workers, four of whom are also field supervisors; of these there are six girls working at Denison House, two each at the South End House and Margaret Fuller House, and one each at the Psychopathic Hospital and the Massachusetts Commission for the Blind. We have furnished two entertainments at Denison House, on November 21 and December 5. An invitation was extended to all Boston settlement houses to send their children to the Christmas carols at Harvard on December 18, and some of the children were escorted by Radcliffe girls. In Red Cross Social Work we have furnished six girls to the Cambridge Associated Charities, who have done nineteen hours a week, and twenty girls to the Cambridge Civilian Relief Home Service Bureau, who have done sixty hours of work weekly since November 4.

It is impossible to state the exact membership of the chapter, since it is but one committee of the Radcliffe Guild, and whoever belongs to the main body, although not definitely enrolled in social work, is to some extent in touch with the work of the chapter. The membership of the guild, which is 240, would, therefore, represent roughly the number of girls at Radcliffe who are connected with the I. C. S. A.

DORIS HODGSON, Elector of the Guild.

Progress at Vassar

The first thing we did was to conduct a thorough canvass of the college for membership. The result was: 296 members, dues paid; 159 who pledged membership, but have not yet paid their dues. We have tried to induce those interested in social work to work at Lincoln Center, a community house in Poughkeepsie, which was started by our Christian Association. Those who do well there will have the first chance to go as councillors to Mount Ivy next summer. Miss Smith visited us in November and gave an informal talk on her experiences in a settlement. She also met individuals and groups who wished to ask further questions and advice.

BEATRICE SCHWARTZ, Elector.

The I. C. S. A. at Bryn Mawr

Due to the quarantine last fall, no work could be started at the Community Center until after Thanksgiving, but the first week in November we obtained permission to give an extemporaneous Hallowe'en party, at which we cleared $290; $100 we gave to war relief, $125 as our I. C. S. A. dues and the remaining $65 we kept for running expenses. When the Community Center work started the volunteer workers were very enthusiastic, but many had to drop out until second semester in order to make up work missed because of the "flu" epidemic. Now things are better, and we hope second semester to have the routine more firmly established. We have begun to visit hospitals in Philadelphia, where we read to the older patients and play games with the children.

Wilson

Owing to the epidemic of influenza, we have not been able to do very much work this year. We have tried to bring cheer and pleasure to the little children who are in the Orphans' Home. We go down to visit them on Sunday afternoons and read and tell them stories. Our faculty elector, Dr. Murray, who is also the head of the Educational Department, has arranged for us to work in the town in connection with the Civic League, but as yet we have accomplished very little.

JULIA H. SHARP, Elector.

The I. C. S. A. at Wheaton

The work of the I. C. S. A. at Wheaton has been very successful so far this year. That its influence is growing here may be seen from the large increase in membership since last year. At present there are 155 members of the Association, about 78 per cent of the entire college enrollment, while last year there were about 40 members.

Because our college is so small, every girl is required to attend all lectures. This makes it impossible for the I. C. S. A. to have as many outside speakers as in a larger college. So far there have been two speakers here. The first of the year at a Y. W. C. A. meeting Miss Tuttle outlined the need for the Association's work. Later in the fall Miss Caroline Blake spoke at a vesper meeting on the societies now started for the care of working girls.

Besides these outside reminders, there have been mass meetings to appeal for volunteer workers to take classes in the towns of Norton and Dodgeville. This branch of the I. C. S. A. work has attracted the girls a great deal, and there is much enthusiasm shown in the classes. At the Norton school the girls are teaching gym classes twice a week in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades, and it is hard to say who enjoys these more, the Wheaton girls or the children. A special dancing class for high school girls is held on Saturday afternoons in our own gym, and has been very successful so far. All these classes are innovations this year, but seem to be working out well. In Dodgeville the Girls' Working Club is taught sewing, cooking and gym under the direction of our students, as they were last year.

To raise money, the annual circus was held in November, and with the proceeds Thanksgiving baskets were carried to several families in Norton; and at Christmas, besides carrying baskets, the I. C. S. A. played Santa Claus to the children of poor families. In some cases fruit and flowers were sent to a few shut-ins of the town. The girls also dressed dolls for Denison House.

Since Wheaton is such a small college and her I. C. S. A. is comparatively recent, the officers of the Association feel very much encouraged at the interest shown in its work and the co-operation so far given by the girls.

DOROTHY GIFFORD.

ALUMNAE CHAPTER NOTES

Alumnae Committees

Alumnae Committees have been formed or are now being formed in the Wellesley and Smith Chapters (already announced in the QUARTERLY), and Radcliffe, Mount Holyoke, Vassar, Goucher and Swarthmore (see Electoral Board list).

There is a possibility that new alumnae chapters may be formed around a nucleus of interested members of the 1918 classes of Wheaton, Sargent and Wilson.

A. C. A.-I. C. S. A. Joint Luncheon

The Boston Branch of the A. C. A. and the I. C. S. A. gave a luncheon on January 22 to the Boston College alumnae of the class of 1918. Mrs. Eva Whiting White, of the I. C. S. A. standing committee, who is serving on two national commissions in Washington, spoke on "Community Service in the Reconstruction Period."

Field Secretary Work

Miss Mary Gove Smith has been called upon twice for expert advice, once in Italian work, once in a problem of neighborhood organization. She went to Middletown, Connecticut, on January 22 to offer counsel in regard to developing community activity, especially with reference to work with girls.

During February and March Miss Smith will conduct a series of small-group meetings, under Mount Holyoke Y. W. C. A. auspices, for the consideration of Settlement Work: Its Ideals, Methods and Achievements, with discussions as to its relation to the neighborhood, to the larger community and to constructive social work as a whole.

Psychopathic Hospital Internships

The Psychopathic Hospital, 74 Fenwood Road, Boston, offers to six college graduates internships for students requiring maintenance. These are open after February 1; application for them should be made either to Miss Mary Jarrett, 74 Fenwood Road, Boston, or to Miss Florence P. Tuttle, 93 Tyler Street, Boston.
